

STEPHEN SMITH

Junior Web Developer

I'm a junior web developer, passionate about building accessible, user-friendly applications and solving complex problems. I bring to the table a unique set of skills and experience, gained from my diverse professional history.

As a recording and performing musician for more than a decade, I'm no stranger to creative collaboration. I understand the importance of keeping an open mind within a team environment, and I'm confident in contributing to the conversation.

I was drawn to programming through a passion for learning, and I'm excited to continue honing my skills and growing as a developer.
